The Conference of the Parties and the Conference of the Parties serving as the meeting of the Parties to the Paris Agreement,

Recalling Articles 4 and 6 of the Convention and Article 12 of the Paris Agreement,

Acknowledging that climate change is a common concern of humankind, Parties should, when taking action to address climate change, respect, promote and consider their respective obligations on human rights, the right to health, the rights of Indigenous Peoples, local communities, migrants, children, persons with disabilities and people in vulnerable situations and the right to development, as well as gender equality, empowerment of women and intergenerational equity,

Recalling decisions 18/CP.26, 23/CP.27, 22/CMA.3 and 22/CMA.4,

Recognizing that Action for Climate Empowerment plays a key role in promoting the changes in lifestyles, attitudes and behaviours needed to foster low-emission, climate-resilient and sustainable development,

Affirming the key role that a broad range of stakeholders, such as national, regional and local governments, educational and cultural institutions, museums, the private sector, intergovernmental organizations, non-governmental organizations, international organizations, decision makers, scientists, the media, journalists, teachers, youth, Indigenous Peoples, local communities, environmental defenders and women, play in ensuring Action for Climate Empowerment,

Acknowledging the growing interest and engagement of youth in climate action and the critical role of youth as agents of change and calling for further enhancement of youth participation in climate change processes and in unleashing the potential of Action for Climate Empowerment,

1. Welcome the conclusion of the midterm review of the Glasgow work programme on Action for Climate Empowerment at the sixty-fifth session of the Subsidiary Body for Implementation[1] and affirm that the Glasgow work programme continues to provide the scope and basis for activities related to implementing Action for Climate Empowerment in accordance with the provisions of the Convention and the Paris Agreement;

2. Take note of the annual summary report for 2026 by the secretariat on progress in implementing activities under the Glasgow work programme,[2] which includes information on progress in implementing the action plan for 2022–2026 under the Glasgow work programme;[3]

4. Reaffirm the importance of all six elements of Action for Climate Empowerment – education, training, public awareness, public participation, public access to information and international cooperation on climate change – for achieving the objective of the Convention and the purpose and goals of the Paris Agreement[4] and agree that the action plan for 2027–2031 under the Glasgow work programme will be implemented in such a manner as to foster all six elements of Action for Climate Empowerment in a balanced manner;

5. Recall that the Glasgow work programme shall be guided by a country-driven approach, cost-effectiveness, flexibility, a gender and intergenerational approach, a phased approach that integrates Action for Climate Empowerment activities into climate change programmes and strategies, the promotion of partnerships, networks and synergies, in particular synergies among conventions, an interdisciplinary multisectoral, multi-stakeholder and participatory approach, a holistic systematic approach, and the principles of sustainable development;[5]

6. Emphasize that the action plan for 2027–2031 under the Glasgow work programme should be implemented in an inclusive, intergenerational and gender-responsive manner;

7. Affirm that Parties and non-Party stakeholders, when designing and implementing Action for Climate Empowerment activities, including those in the action plan for 2027–2031 under the Glasgow work programme, should apply whole-of-society approaches, in accordance with national priorities, needs and circumstances, that enable, as appropriate, the full, meaningful and equal participation of all members of society, including children and youth, all women and girls, older people, Indigenous Peoples, local communities, people of African descent, environmental defenders, migrants, persons with disabilities and people in vulnerable situations;
